WHERE YOU'LL FIND ME

Thursday, June 7
6:30pm
Laconia Rotary Hall

On February 15, 2015, Kate Matrosova, an avid mountaineer, set off before sunrise for a traverse of the Northern Presidential Range in New Hampshire's White Mountains. Late the following day, rescuers carried her frozen body out of the mountains amid some of the worst weather ever recorded on these deceptively rugged slopes.

At 32, she was ultra-fit and healthy and had already summited much larger mountains on several continents. Her gear included a rescue beacon and a satellite phone. Yet, despite their best efforts, forty-two expert search and rescue personnel, a New Hampshire Army National Guard Blackhawk helicopter, and a Civil Air Patrol Cessna airplane could not reach her in time to save her.

What went wrong?

Ty Gagne, author of Where You'll Find Me: Risk, Decisions, and the Last Climb of Kate Matrosova, offers some answers to that question and discusses what we can learn about risk analysis and decision-making from this and other mountaineering accidents. Copies of the book will be available for purchase and signing after the talk.
