NH Humane Society

Over a century of love for those without a voice.

Meet This Week's Featured Pets!

Meet Elton!

Meet Elton! He came all the way from Louisiana in search of a forever home in NH! Elton was given a second chance at life by being transported here, and is ready to find his new family. He does well with other cats and could do well with mellow kids, too. He is not available just yet, but you can still put in a general cat application to be ready for when he does become available.

Applications can be sent to adoptions@nhhumane.org, and for more information you can email or call New Hampshire Humane Society at 603-524-3252 ext. 3312. Find out more at nhhumane.org!

Meet Goldie! Goldie is a very timid and sweet 1 yr. old mixed breed who originally came on a transport from the south. She is a petite girl at only about 40 lbs. Goldie was not properly socialized as a pup and now needs some help from someone patient and kind who is willing to take the time to help her build confidence and learn! She would do best in an adult only home and may also do best in a home with another confident canine friend. No kitties for her - too fun to chase!

Applications can be sent to adoptions@nhhumane.org, and for more information you can email or call New Hampshire Humane Society at 603-524-3252 ext. 3312. Find out more at nhhumane.org!

World Water Day

Sunday, March 22, 2020

Today, 1 in 3 people – around 2.2 billion – live without safe drinking water. (WHO/UNICEF 2019). The Laconia Conservation Commission would like to raise awareness of the global water crisis and climate change by encouraging the observance of World Water Day.

Hundreds of thousands of people are taking individual action on climate change as part of the UN's #ActNow campaign. Here are five changes we can all make today:

Take five minute showers: Water scarcity already affects four out of ten people. With 80% of wastewater never being treated, taking shorter showers is a great way to save this precious resource.

Eat more plant-based meals: Dietary changes, featuring plant-based foods and sustainable animal-sourced food, could reduce greenhouse gas emissions by up to 8.0 gigatonnes a year of carbon dioxide equivalent.

Don't throw away edible food: An estimated 1/3 of all food produced globally is lost or goes to waste. Reducing your food wastage reduces demand on agriculture which is one of the biggest water consumers.

Turn off tech: Currently 90% of power generation is water-intensive. By powering down our devices when we're not using them, the less energy needs to be produced.

Shop sustainably: A typical pair of jeans takes 10,000 litres of water to produce, equal to what a person drinks in 10 years. Sourcing our goods from responsible sources can have a big impact on the consumption of water and other essential resources.

Did You Know?

- Approximately 10,000 Laconia residents get their drinking water from Paugus Bay.
- Laconia Water Department posts its annual "Our Daily Water" Consumer Confidence Report elsewhere on this website. The report is also mailed to all property owners in the spring of each year.
- For more information on local drinking water, visit: <https://www.laconianh.gov/222/Water-FAQs>

THEN . . .

This Texaco Station — seen here in March 1956 — was a landmark at the corner of Church and River streets, Laconia, from 1931 until it was removed around 1980, when it was known as Joe's BP. Built by W.M. Bisson between Dec. 8, 1930 and Feb. 12, 1931, according to The Citizen, the station opened in late March, with J.L. Labbe as first proprietor. Construction of the station, 'with its driveways, and the complete installation of tanks, pumps, plumbing, heating and lighting during the middle of winter shows that winter construction is not only possible, but that it is also practical from the business viewpoint.'
